

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A process and apparatus for rapidly screening materials using, for example, mass spectrometry has been developed. More specifically, an array of materials on a fluid permeable support contained within a reaction cell having a semipermeable
5 membrane can be rapidly screened for characteristics such as catalytic activity, selectivity, and adsorption and desorption properties.